

- 12 -

ABSTRACT

A shoe 1, having a toe section 2, and a heel section 3. The heel section 3, either totally or partly detachable from the toe section 2. Once at least partly detached, the shoe
5 may be easily slipped onto the foot of a wearer, without the wearer having to bend or apply pressure to their foot to install or remove the shoe. In the embodiments in which the shoe is partly detached, the heel section 3 may be rotated relative to the toe section 2, either sideways or downwards. The detachable fastening means 4 may incorporate zippers, Velcro™ or other fastening means.

10

(Figure 8)